China's International Identities: The Conflicted Rising Power

Tuesday 31 August 2010
5.00pm
Lecture Theatre 1
Hedley Bull Centre (Building #130), ANU

David Shambaugh is Professor of Political Science and International Affairs, Director of The China Policy Program in the Elliott School of International Affairs at The George Washington University (1996-present), and Nonresident Senior Fellow in the Foreign Policy Studies Program at The Brookings Institution (1998-present).

Before joining the faculty at George Washington, he taught for eight years at the University of London’s School of Oriental and African Studies, where he also served as Editor of the China Quarterly from 1991–96. He also served as Acting Director of the Asia Program at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars (1987–1988), and as an analyst in the Department of State Bureau of Intelligence and Research (1976–77), and the National Security Council staff (1977–78).

Professor Shambaugh received his Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Michigan, and M.A. in International Affairs from Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), and B.A. in East Asian Studies.

This Asian security seminar is hosted in association with the ANU China Institute.

The seminar is free and open to all but please RSVP to Ms Sheila Flores:
E: sheila.flores@anu.edu.au

The views expressed in this lecture series are those of the presenters and do not necessarily represent the views of The Australian National University.